3. With regard to any nucleotide and/or amino acid sequence disclosed in the international application, the international preliminary examination was carried out on the basis of the sequence listing:

EXAMINATION REPORT

(Any replacement sheet containing such amendments must be referred to under item 1 and annexed to this report.)

6. Additional observations, if necessary:

VIII. Certain observations on the international application

The following observations on the clarity of the claims, description, and drawings or on the question whether the claims are fully supported by the description, are made:
see separate sheet

INTERNATIONAL PRELIMINARY
EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

International application No. PCT/GB99/04064

1. Claim 1 is not clear within the meaning of Article 6 PCT.
The expression "lithographic printing" in the claim to a skilled person has a general meaning. In the description page 3, paragraph 3, however, is stated a very special but from the claim 1 differing meaning of the expression. The claim, therefore, is misleading.
2. From the document WO9748257, which is cited in the description of the present application, there is known a process for forming a conductive layer on a substrate, comprising the steps of depositing ink on the substrate by means of said "lithographic printing" to form a seeding layer, and depositing a first electrically conducting layer on the seeding layer. From this document it is not said explicitly that it should be an electroless deposition. The use of a seed layer for an electroless deposition, however, is a measure which lies within the normal considerations of a skilled person, see e.g. EP0664664. This feature, therefore, does not involve an inventive step. As a consequence, the subject-matter of claim 1, does not involve an inventive step (Article 33.3 PCT).
3. The features of the appendant claims 2-13 cannot be seen as involving an inventive step because they belong to the common technical knowledge of a skilled person. Any combination of these features with the features of claim 1, therefore, cannot define inventive subject-matter within the meaning of Article 33.3 PCT.
4. Claim 14 is an independent device claim and for clarity the claim must specify the inventive features. Claim 14 does not fulfil the requirements of Article 6 PCT.

Relating to claim 15. The use of an ink comprising a polyamide is known from the document US4470883 (col. 4, line 31 - col. 5, line 19). Such an ink as claimed in claim 15, therefore, cannot be seen as involving an inventive step (Article 33.3 PCT). In this claim the expression "lithographic printing" is misleading, as explained for claim 1 in point 1.

INTERNATIONAL PRELIMINARY
EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

International application No. PCT/GB99/04064

6. It is not apparent which part of the claims could serve as a basis for an independent claim comprising inventive features.
